which are selected by both Lynn Handshy, our librarian, and the students.

The top readers are listed on a plaque which hangs in the library.

Julie Wiese, Sally Synder, Sandy Rosenbaum and Kathleen Baer did the tally work.

TOUCHING BASES

The Carmel Valley Little League Park is now teeming with life, and lo, we are now living with teams. According to the latest official figures, just released by Deborah Warcken, our very own CVLL Board Secretary, the rosters for this year line up as follows. We'll start with the major league teams, as this information seems to contain the lowest data flexibility factor.

Heading the list are the Falcons, managed by Larry Warcken and coached by Don Covington. The team members are Tim Covington, Perkin Di Grazia, Ben Di Grazia, Bryan Ferrasci, Brent Glanville, Todd Grive, Nick Hawley, Giovanni Pesce, Zeph Peterson, Ryan Schiffman, David Thomas and Casey Warcken. It looks like a solid team and should do well in the standings this year.

The Indians are once again managed by Gary Pennington, our grounds expert and gopher nemesis, and coached by Pam Priano, who seems to do just about everything else. The very promising team includes Jesse Armstrong, Joey Britton, Damen Hattori, Reynold Heiland, Derek Heiland, Matt Hohler, Nathan Killick, Mark Lundy, Bryce McCoy, Chris Rankin, Nathan Ricigliano, and Sam Strong. Gary complained of a jinx when we picked this team to go all the way; we stand by our prediction.

The Lions this year have new faces at the helm: Rusty Vandervort as manager and Rick Smith as coach. Heading up the Lions' roster is Derek Barkalow, followed by Dean Bogart, Nick Buich, Patrick Call, Tirey Cordrey, Duane Flores, Reed Heneks, Robby Lamvik, Kenneth Restani, Chris Smith, Ian Smith, and Brent Thompson-Vandervort. We have to admit that any team managed by a member of the great Vandervort Dynasty poses a serious threat to the other contenders. What will we hear from the Rusty-Rick Duo this year?

But the Lions aren't the only cats on the prowl. With Glen ("Who's got some Ben-Gay?") Nolte managing and Dave ("Whaddya mean, you're tired?") Stainbrook coaching, the Tigers could return as the Mean Green Machine to beat. Nathan Adams leads the pack, with Jered Chapple, Barrett Conrad, Nick Larson, Pat Lyon, Casey O'Neal, F. J. Pfitzer, Sam Saunders, Zac Schiffman, Jeff Steinberg, and David Steinberg rounding out the roster. These guys could be tough.

Finally, we have the ever-popular Volunteers, perennial threats (until their beepers go off and they rush off to put out the fire). We welcome Jeff Watts back to the ranks of managers, and he should certainly build a fire under this team. (As of press time, we did not have a coach named. We'll let you know.) At the top of the roster we find Rico (the Scooter) Ferrante, followed by Benny Gardiner, Travers Gere, Patrick Hale, Sean Kristl, Bodhi Kvenild, Mark Lister, Erik Saxton, Mike Saxton, Jered Seeders, Gib Seeders and Jonathan Thomas.

Let's move on now to the Double A level, where we find the Braves, the Eagles, the Cougars and the Sharks. Robin Jenkins will manage the Braves, and he'll be keeping an eye on Billy Birdsong, Dennis Chrzas, Taylor Corso, Keith Davids, Jacob Jenkins, Daryl Lambert, Lorenzo Osornio, Patrick Parsel, Mike Pike, Kellen Scanlon, Ross Tiernan and Ryland Utegaard.

Pat Hannon will corral the Cougars, and he'll field Michael de Maria, Matthew Dillard, Colby Grewell, John Hannon, Trevor Ingram, Russell Joyce, Jon-Peter Meckel, Nick Miller, Danny Mueller, Brad Sargent, Stephen Saunders and Tommy Schmidt.

Once again Michael Fields will soar with the Eagles, and he'll be passing judgment on Austin Cox, Brandon Espinoza, Ryder Kovach, Devon Kreyenhagen, Peter Lucas, Ryan Passey, Matt Rankin, Evan Rosen, Nick Siegel, Chelsea von Beltz, Chris Waddell and Kyle Zabala.

Terry De Salvo will put the bite on any wayward Sharks this season. Cruising for him will be Beau Baer, Justin Battey, Raz Belleci, Bryce Culbert, Ryan Dawson, Ryan De Salvo, Nathan Menke, Jovanna Rosen, Spencer Sargent, Brian Saxton, Will Sefton and Shawn Ward.

As to the quality of play you're likely to see at the Double A level, it has long been the consensus of such cognoscenti as Don Terry that Double A baseball is the most fun to watch. It's sort of a lovely melding of flashes from the majors and out-takes from Funniest Home Videos. We highly recommend these fine teams and these fine managers to you.

Next week we hope to have information on the Single A teams and their mentors, so please be patient. The hard working folks who put all these stats together are to be congratulated on a job well done.

Now, if we might continue for a moment, last column's view of baseball as she is played in Carmel Valley. You will recall that we had pointed out the basic division obvious in the people found at the park: players, whom we delineated a bit last time, and spectators, whom we shall mention briefly as a coda on this column. Spectators at CVLL Park also divide themselves into two basic groups and several sub-groups. The basic groups are those who sit in the stands, and those who don't. Those who sit in the stands also divide themselves into several groups, not necessarily mutually exclusive. First there are those Who Show Up For Every Game, like Chuck and Muriel Dawson. Then there are those Who Make Lots of Noise (present author being occasionally guilty but nowhere near the quality of Richards or Kovacs.) There are those Who Leave Detritus Around, and those who are neat and tidy and use the trash bins. There are a very few who Bring Dogs (frowned on, Barney excepted) and those really smart ones Who Bring Cushions. There are those who yell at Blue, only when he makes a call going against a favorite player, and those who reflexively pass judgment on every call and who had better watch out or they will be down there behind the plate in about three and a half seconds.

Of course, the spectators who don't sit in the stands are also a mixed bunch. There are those who spend most of their time at the snack bar. There are those who drape over the third base fence, dodge screamers off a wild Indian, and recount to each other days of their own past glories which grow more glorious with the retelling. There are those who coach the kids and coach the coaches and may find themselves on the next coach out. There are those who spit and those who don't. Then, there are those who run at full speed - these are usually under the age of ten - at, through, and around everything and anybody, but they are particularly adept at body-checking anyone who has a full drink cup from the snack bar. And, of course, we have the descendants of Genghis Khan who ride their Mongolian Mongoose bikes at warp speed irrespective - and disrespectful - of any obstacle, animate or inanimate. (Perhaps we could issue a few short sticks to be used as spoke chokes this season...) Reminder to parents: please discourage this sort of Test Track behavior. And thanks to all of you for remembering that the stands, the dugouts the snack bar and - we hope - the entire CVLL Park is a smoke-free, tobacco-free zone, a zone where we all drive very slowly.

But, whether folks are in the stands or along the fences, sitting at the picnic tables or relaxing in the family van, almost everyone at the Carmel Valley Little League Park seems to have a good time at the ball game. That's the way we want it here as we play baseball in paradise. See you at the field.

Mello continues push for Methyl Bromide use

Senator Henry Mello (D-Watsonville) opposed amendments that would have banned the use of methyl bromide by 2001.

Mello's bill differed from other attempts at extending the methyl bromide study deadline in that it contains language requesting state regulators to consider a number of protections including field postings and barrier and buffer zone standards.

AS THE RIVER RUNS

Norman Spaulding

From the perspective of the 1700s, American seemed to be an infinite treasure of opportunities to the invading Europeans and their African cohorts.

Any and every piece of land acquired or conquered was there to be timbered, mined, farmed, ranched, hunted or developed at the pleasure of the owner. The underlying precept was that all land might be used for its highest and best use, at that moment.

The waste and debris of this wild exploitation of the land was dumped into rivers, onto wetlands, hidden in then-remote sites, or left in the wake of exploitation.

Highest and best (immediate) use became part of the American ethos, from the forests of New England and the Sierras to the harbor and trading centers of the emerging nation.

If the water became spoiled or the land eroded or poisoned, there was always more land to be found elsewhere to be put to its highest and best use.

America's land and nature's wild and civilized creatures were there to be hunted, exploited, and used for whatever short-term profits could be wrought.

Whole towns flourished and died in the short span of a decade or less. Yes, there were losses, to the people, the land and the environment. In the big picture of the cultural ethos that extolled seeking the highest and best use for every tract of land a person could lay claim to: the damage to the land and the annihilation of water sources were accepted practices.

What we learned in fighting to create the Monterey Bay Marine Sanctuary seems to have fallen on deaf ears when it comes to the use of the land that borders the Sanctuary.

That which we have here along the Pacific Ocean's shores is very special. Quickie short-sighted plans to attempt to produce short-term economic benefits for land owners (public or private) in the greater coastal Monterey Bay area are doomed to destroy one of the most precious scenic natural landscapes in America.

Do not mistake this as a call for "no-growth". This is a challenge against the unbridled application of the concept of the highest and best use.

The notion of highest and best use has no place in this community where there are no longer infinite frontiers to plunder and exploit.

We can have growth. We can have economic expansion. But, we must use new thoughts and technology to determine ways to accomplish growth without any more environmental pollution from cars, sewage, chemicals, noise and ecological destruction.

The bright signs are: the Pebble Beach Company's use of recycled water for golf course watering, the Castroville water reclamation plan, the water conservation efforts by most local residents, MST's provision of the only mass transit system in the county, the efforts of a stalwart few to keep the potential for the revitalization of rail transit to Monterey County, the vote to squelch another dam on the Carmel River, and our precious Monterey Bay Sanctuary.

Well...Yes...at some time before we let the short-term incremental thinkers turn Marina, Seaside, Salinas and Monterey into a sprawling Silicone Valley miniature or Carmel Valley into a dense urban commercial and residential morass, like the mouth of the valley, stop and think ahead.

Let the highest and best use state, county, agency, and city planners continue along their present course and the first part of the next century will award you with:

- 1) A four to six lane superhighway from Monterey to Salinas along the Highway 68 corridor.
- 2) A Hatton Canyon Freeway paralleling Highway 1 through Carmel.
- 3) A four lane highway along Carmel Valley Road from the mouth of the Valley to Greenfield.
- 4) A four lane road from the intersection of 218 at Highway 68 to mid-Carmel Valley.
- 5) A four lane connector from Davis/Laurel in Salinas to Highway 1, cutting across Fort Ord and a major connector from Seaside's Broadway to Marina's Reservation Road.

6) A major arterial from Tassajara to Gonzales.

These roadways will give us all the ammunition we need to turn Coastal Monterey County into something that looks and smells like South San Francisco or San Mateo.

It takes no courage to mess up the land. It only requires a reckless pursuit of the highest and best use.

Saving our paradise from near-sighted destruction will demand new thinkers and new thoughts and the bold strength to say Yes to: water conservation, sewage treatment and re-use, mass transit (rail, road and air), high density development with large amounts of natural open space (Rancho San Carlos has the potential to be a step in that direction), a serious determination to protect Mother Nature's good works - fish, fowl, insect plant, animal and people.

No person in this county has the right to use his property in a fashion which will cause unmitigated harm or damage to the land, air and water which we all share.

We must continue to struggle to shift our cultural ethos from highest and best use toward a view that says best for the land and people and then profit.

WHAT'S NEXT? Mel Vercoe

To offset worsening unemployment problems in this remarkable "the rich getting richer, and the poor getting poorer" chapter in U.S. history, we should either have more holidays, or just change from five day work weeks to four day work weeks.

One holiday could be called "F. Lee Bailey Day", in honor of the great role model attorney who is now eating jail meals, because he somehow forgot what he'd done with about $25 million that was supposed to have been turned over to the U.S. government. Well, heck, that could have happened to anybody.

Another holiday could be called "Super-greed Day" in honor of a really great idea, Proposition 199, that some of us will be voting for or against in a few days. People who see nothing wrong with senior citizens and low income people being "ripped off" by greedy people will be voting "yes". Others, who disagree, will be voting "no".

The moral of the whole thing is that people should know better than to be poor, or to get old without first getting rich.

No to hunting mountain lion

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

No on Proposition 197. Say "No" to the trophy hunting of mountain lions.

California's current law designates the mountain lion as a specifically protected mammal. This simply means that it is not a game or trophy animal and may not be killed for sport. The law was passed overwhelmingly in 1990 by voters of California, under Proposition 117, and was intended to protect California's cougars from cruel and indiscriminate trophy hunting by people lacking training in wildlife management.

Current law also requires the California Department of Fish and Game to remove or take any mountain lion, or authorize an appropriate local agency with public safety responsibilities to remove or take any mountain lion, that is perceived to be a threat to public health or safety.

Mountain lions can be killed in California when they pose a risk to people, property, pets or livestock. In 1994 alone, 122 mountain lions were killed under depredation permits issued by the Department of Fish and Game.

In 1994 there were fatal attacks on people for the first time in 85 years - a jogger near Sacramento and a hiker in San Diego County were killed. These deaths were unquestionably tragedies but unfortunately, they were just the opening trophy hunters were looking for to introduce legislation to repeal protection for mountain lions. Don't be fooled. Support public education and awareness but say "No" to the trophy hunting.

Vote No on Proposition 197.

Supports Supervisor's RSC decision

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

There was an editorial in the Salinas Californian which detailed why it is clear that the County staff, its agencies and the Board of Supervisors supported the approval of the Santa Lucia Preserve at Rancho San Carlos. The editorial said it was so clear from the supporting evidence and agreement of county and independent water specialists that Rancho San Carlos not only has enough water but will not negatively affect the Carmel Valley water. It went on to question why anyone would consider returning to the issue of water as an argument against Rancho San Carlos.

The Pine Cone also makes it clear that the Supervisors are convinced there is ample water for the project and that it will have no impacts on Carmel Valley.

The report from Walter Wong, head of the County's Environmental Health Division (and one of the strictest sceptics regarding water claims in this county)), clearly states that water has been proven to the satisfaction of his department, the Water Resources Agency, the EIR consultants and the independent third party reviewer. He also says Rancho San Carlos has proven they have a distinctly separate water source.

Numerous hydrologists, water balance experts and other water professionals - including those independently hired by the County - have repeatedly expressed support for the project based on their analyses of the water quantity, source and impact.

How did the Herald editors arrive at a separate opinion from these other sources? Let's base our opinions, editors included, on facts rather than hearsay that has a political agenda.

I offer my congratulations to the Board of Supervisors for thoroughly doing their homework and basing their unanimous decision on factual, scientific evidence which answers not only their questions about the Santa Lucia Preserve, but also addresses the concerns of the majority of the citizens of Monterey County.

Rancho San Carlos Growth Will Have Nil Impact

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

It is difficult for me to understand how thoughtful, truth loving, educated people can accept much of the disingenuous, even false statements, repeated again and again by the most vocal opponents of the RSC development plan. Joseph Goebbels, the master of lies and misinformation in Hitler's Germany, proudly proclaimed that his falsehoods, repeated often enough, became accepted as fact.

Misinformation, carefully constructed to mislead the public, is being freely distributed by RSC's loyal opposition.

Writers to your publication stating that 30,000 people will be added to Carmel Valley's wilderness area may not believe this preposterous claim themselves but they are asking the public to believe it and in doing so sign their referendum. Carmel Valley's water supply will not be impacted by water drawn from a separate, distinct, totally adequate ground water supply existing within RSC and yet this totally false threat is continuously repeated in spite of proof to the contrary.

Even the candidates for the 5th District Supervisor's seat seem to be poorly informed about the issues surrounding this public controversy. Their public statements regarding RSC show little regard for private property rights or the mass of data supporting this project.

I suggest the "loyal opposition" clean up its act and 5th District candidates do their due diligence with the facts.

Another voice in opposition to visual litter along Carmel Valley Road

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

The garbage lining the Carmel Valley Road Friday morning has finally pushed my button. A long series of torn cardboard signs spewing anti-development and anti-Rancho San Carlos sentiment was mounted on telephone poles and fences for miles. A small group of self-proclaimed environmentalists has decided that viewshed is not important if the thoughts expressed are theirs. Some of these people are the ones who scream loudly about the "happy birthday" and "I love you" signs that appear from time to time.

Those of us who are true environmentalists understand that we are a part of the environment and not the fluke of the universe. Our role in the ecosystem requires us to take a responsible position in considering how we dwell among the other plant and animal species which share the environment. The appropriate milieu for expressing political opinion is in newspapers, letters and discussions; not the viewshed.

Each election year we tolerate political campaign signs, understanding that they will be visible only for a short period of time. We remember who does not remove their signs when the elections are over. These people do not remove their signs. Their anti-dam signs are disintegrating along the roadsides even now.

I resent the pollution forced upon me by these signs; both the visual pollution presented by the signs themselves and the thought-pollution presented by their content.

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Many discussions over the years have dealt with the growth issue on the Peninsula. Should there be more growth? Should there be no growth? Should there be "controlled" growth? Based on statements of politicians and politicians-to-be, it has become more and more clear that an important issue is deeply buried and rarely addressed.

It is the issue of the "right" to improve real property (with houses, restaurants, hotels, golf courses, you name it.)

A fundamental assumption that many people have, is that if you purchase unimproved real property, you have the unconditional right to improve it. This is not true in today's world. The act of acquiring real property does not give the new owner the unconditional right to develop it. It is not until a building permit has been issued and substantial work performed in accordance with the building permit that the right to improve real property is vested. Until that time, zoning ordinances and other laws or regulations may limit that right.

What this means is that our elected officials have the discretionary power to control, limit or stop growth and it is their responsibility to use that power wisely. It is, in other words, a political decision to be made by them in their representative capacities, keeping in mind the requirement that zoning ordinances be reasonably necessary for the promotion of the public health, safety, morals or general welfare. Somewhere with that requirement is "the preservation of our quality of life."

High Level Endorsement for Karin Kauffman

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

I am pleased to endorse Karin Strasser Kauffman for the 27th Assembly District seat.

We have reached a crisis point in terms of electing women to the State Legislature. By 1992, only 25% of the Assembly was comprised of women. At present, only 24 women serve in the State Assembly and Senate. By 1997 we may have as few as 16 women in the State Legislature. We must elect strong and courageous Let's say Sarah can assemble and bake six supremely scrumptious apple pies in an evening. They are so good, friends and neighbors ordered five of them, leaving only one for me. (Sarah prefers chocolate cream). First there were six, then there was one...with a little cash left over for ingredients and loving labor.

If Sarah were willing to sell her knowledge about pies, let's say for the price of one pie each time, she could sell directions for making six different pies, have the money she would have taken from selling six pies, and she would still have her six sets of directions to sell to someone else interested in making a supremely scrumptious apple or chocolate cream or olallieberry or whatever pie. Sarah would have entered the Information Age, and I probably would not get any more supremely scrumptious apple pie unless I bought her recipe and baked it myself.

It wouldn't take too many evenings filling orders for pie-making directions before Sarah established a network of outlets for the recipes and commercial tie-ins among oven manufacturers, rolling pin suppliers, Harry and David, Yankee Magazine and the Library of Congress. After interviews on the Today show she would be approached to do a CD-ROM explaining the steps she uses to make supremely scrumptious pies...in technicolor and stereophonic sound at quad speed, 32-bit delivery on 486 PCs operating Windows 95 at 33 megahertz or faster. Next stop, the Internet.

If Sarah's pie information business follows the growth of the Information Age to date, it will treble every decade. That means what used to be 6 pies an evening becomes information that expands to the equivalent of 18 pies an evening in ten years, and 54 pies an evening in twenty years. If she stays in business thirty years...right, 162 pies an evening, plus adjustments for inflation. Harry and David will have to plant trees on all of western Oregon just to meet global demand for supremely scrumptious apple pies.

With such an indomitable economic engine driving growth at a rate which has trebled every decade since 1970, it is difficult to accept even the mention of a recession or a depression "just around the corner". Sarah will be turning out the information equivalent of 162 pies an evening, and everyone in the household will be up to his ears in apple peels, you can be sure of it.

More support for Davi

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

Recently, a candidate for Supervisor of the 5th District, Jeff Davi, made a public announcement to the entire 5th District that he would seek public office again. I wholeheartedly support Jeff's candidacy.

I was impressed by the way Jeff announced. He visited each community within the 5th District in order to see and hear from people he wants to represent. That is the kind of thing I like. It is easy to send a fax or letter to the local media, but to plan a whole day dedicated to visiting each community along the Monterey Peninsula including Monterey, Pacific Grove, Carmel, Carmel Highlands and Carmel Valley, indicates he has a strong will to work for this community. The number of people attending showed widespread support.

I am looking forward to more great things from Jeff Davi. I encourage you to join us in his "March to Victory."

Says amen to Kauffman's anti-gun position

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

It takes no courage to go against the tide, but Karin Strasser Kauffman is no stranger to courage.

Politicians, particularly at the national level, have shrunk in fear and trembling before the powerful voting bloc that is the National Rifle Association, but not Karin Strasser Kauffman. The 27th Assembly District candidate has no qualms about taking on this powerful gun lobby. I, for one, applaud her.

Strasser Kauffman's mother was murdered during a robbery. We read daily about the burgeoning of armed gangs in our cities and, yes, in our

The following real estate sales were reported for the period of February 11, 1996 through February 24, 1996:

Michael McGuire sold to Shelby Taylor 1163 Arroyo Drive on February 17, 1996 for $440,000.

William McLaren sold to Frank Hevrdejs a property on Oleady Road on February 23, 1996 for $3,250,000.

suburban and rural areas, too. In fact, Strasser Kauffman says there are more than 250 gun dealers in this region without county permits, many operating out of their homes.

When elected, Strasser Kauffman will introduce gun control measures with teeth in them so that innocent lives will be saved. Your vote for her on March 26 will help her make stiff gun laws happen.

Karin Strasser Kauffman is no stranger to us. Her years as 5th District Supervisor demonstrated her intelligence, honesty, concern, and caring not only for her own constituency, but also for the entire County, and particularly for the fragile environment of the 5th District.

Strasser Kauffman wants to represent us in the State Assembly. I'm convinced no one can represent us as well as she can. Please join me in voting for Karin Strasser Kauffman on March 26.

None sold.

Editor, Carmel Valley Sun:

I was pleased to see that Jeff Davi is running for Supervisor.

Jeff Davi announced in a true grass roots fashion. He visited each community within his district in order to meet and hear from people throughout the 5th District. Over 100 people attended the announcements to show their commitment and support for his candidacy.

I believe his "vision" to preserve our quality of life, to find cost effective environmentally sound water solutions, and to get control of the county budget are all things I would like to see addressed by our Supervisors. I am glad to know that Jeff is running, he will represent the 5th District well.

Remember not to hit the ball into the open court all the time. Sometimes it's best to hit the ball behind your opponent.

Sometimes the opponent is moving so fast to cover the open court, that when you hit behind him, he can't change his momentum.

FUN IN THE SUN

Dave Lyon

Your local Carmel Valley Community Center would like to gratefully acknowledge a recent gift of $1000 from the AT&T Pebble Beach Golf Charities, given as a donation to the CVCYC in consideration for help with the Ft. Ord parking lot clean-up patrol. (Which makes it sound much more glamorous than it was...believe me...)

Special thanx to everyone who participated in this special litter control effort. (Translation: picking up trash in the rain during the recent AT&T golf tournament...) Extra kudos to Jon Lyon and Jason Lo Schiavo, who headed up the late Sunday debris elimination party, and earned several hours each of valuable Carmel High Community Service time. Their involvement in this important project will give them each approximately one one/zillionth of the necessary CHS Community Service requirements.

Further thanxs to Carmel Valley Rec & Park Pres Ron Lavora for making this refuse removal project available to the Community Center volunteers. The CVCYC crew was able to clean 6 of the 7 Ft. Ord lots before the effort was cancelled due to standing water on the 7th parking lot. Kids: watch this space for more exciting info on earning those pesky Community Service credits through the CVCYC. (Flipping burgers? Selling soda? Hey, beats picking up trash.)

Uncle Dave sez stand-up and give a big Carmel Valley welcome to the newest pride of the Lyon family, baby Courtney Faye "Moose" Lyon, arriving on this planet last Wednesday morning at 12:25 a.m., weighing in at 9 pounds, five ounces. Daddy Bob and Mommy Linda Lyon reportedly doing fine. Cigars available upon request through the Community Center.

The very cool and always happening Tularcitos Parent Club invites you to attend the annual Spring Fling party, being held this Saturday, the 16th of March, from 6 p.m. til midnight at Hidden Valley Seminars. This outstanding evening of fun, food and dance will feature an excellent buffet dinner (by Silver Spoons Catering), hors d'oeuvres, wine and soda bar, music by Sight-n-Sound productions, and live and silent auctions.

Your $30 per person donation includes the famous keepsake Spring Fling wine glass, plus all the wine you can keep it filled with. Highlights of the dinner will include Baron of beef, roasted turkey, rosemary new potatoes, fresh broccoli, caesar salad, homemade breads, and wonderful, mouth-watering desserts by Tularcitos parents. Wines for the evening will be provided by Bernardus, Durney, Ventana, Zabala vineyards and other local vintners.

Highlights of the auctions include get-aways to Lake Tahoe, Stonepine, and Spanish Bay, with family fun trips to Disneyland, Hearts Castle, Sea World and Magic Mountain. Come enjoy a wonderful evening with your friends, and help support the ongoing efforts of the Tularcitos Parent Club.

Even more Spring-type stuff going on around here: the gang at your local Carmel Valley Garden Association is busy planning their 29th annual Flower Show, taking place this year on Sunday, April 28, at Hidden Valley. The show is free to the public.

Tune in next time for a complete update on the not-too-far-in-the-future pool opening party. Hint: don't plan anything for the 1st weekend in May.

Free Summer Camp Guide

The 1996 directory of Northern California summer camps accredited by the American Camping Association (ACA) is now available. Interested parties can request a free copy by calling 800-362-2236 or can download the information from the World Wide Web (<http://www.camping.org>).

The booklet lists more than 100 day and resident camps, as well as approved camp sites. In addition to the more traditional camps, the directory includes family camps, special interest camps and camps for special populations, such as the disabled and children with certain illnesses. Several camps have expanded programs for teens. Many have sliding scale fees or scholarships for needy families.

Water solutions, Not rationing...

"We face a serious water crisis. The state has mandated that pumping from the Carmel Valley aquifer be cut back by almost 70%. The voters have rejected the idea of a new dam. It is now our task to find environmentally sound and economically feasible ways to make up for the water lost. We must have adequate water for those of us who live and work here. I am actively involved in the ongoing efforts to find acceptable solutions. As your supervisor, I will be in an even better position to lead the search for water solutions."
